A collection of abalone shells is shown. The central shell is the most prominent, featuring a complex pattern of iridescent colors including shades of green, blue, pink, and purple. It has several small, dark, circular holes scattered across its surface. To its right, another shell is partially visible, showing a more uniform blue-green iridescence and several larger, dark holes. In the bottom left corner, a portion of a third shell is visible, displaying vibrant purple and blue iridescence. The shells are resting on a plain, white, slightly textured surface. The text 'Mother of Pearl' is overlaid in the top left, and 'Madre Perla' is overlaid in the bottom right.
